

Audrey Lucas

Audrey is a Senior Partner at McKinsey and the Managing Partner for the Minneapolis location. In her eighteen years at McKinsey, she has served several of the world's leading retailers, consumer packaged goods, agriculture, industrial and health care companies. Across these industries, Audrey helps companies drive growth by adapting their business and operating models to rapidly evolving consumer expectations.

Within McKinsey, Audrey plays several leadership roles; she is currently the leader of the global Partner Learning and Development team. Previously, she led the North American retail pricing practice, the North American Consumer Growth service line, the Midwest Consumer practice, and the Midwest Women's initiative.

Audrey was one of the founding members of MBOLD, a coalition of Minnesota companies and institutions working to accelerate solutions to the most pressing global challenges facing the food and agriculture sectors today. She serves on the Executive Committees of the Guthrie Theatre and the Washburn Center. In addition, she serves on the Itasca Project Working Group and on the Board of GreaterMSP; in these roles, she is focused on regional strategy and economic development efforts. Audrey has also served on the Executive Team of the Heartlink Gala, the American Heart Association Gala and Go Red for Women for the Twin Cities.

Audrey holds an M.B.A. from the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania and a B.A. from Northwestern University.
